Excerpt from Nancy Blake Letters to a Western Cousin How the streets were filled with the rich and the proud, Sure never was seen such a wonderful crowd. Yet, which were the ton would have puzzled the brain Of a head much wiser than mine to explain. Like grandmama s peacocks, who spread themselves so, Each one of them seemed to be dressed for a show. Such satins, such silks, such beautiful laces, You never got time to look at their faces. While my thoughts flew back to home and to you - While the old house clock was striking two - We arrived at my aunt s in Fifth avenue. Now, my uncle McAyres, I ve heard grandmama say, Was a tailor, who lived in a very small way. Much mending he did, with clothes ready made, Of every description, fashion and shade, Till that terrible day, which the world well knows, That valorous day, when the North arose, For the Flag had been struck by Southern foes. Now, my uncle McAyres was a loyal man,...
